While most architects develop a particular design style for which they are known for, James Carroll's home designs vary as exemplified throughout this publication.

He approaches each project with dedication and enthusiasm, studying the history of the architectural style presented to him. This ensures that the final design reflects a true, albeit "updated" representation.

His designs stand the test of time, are not trendy, and have proven to be attractive and livable for years ahead, regardless of how tastes and lifestyles change.
